Description

This individually designed, brand new four-bedroom detached home in North Waltham, has been planned for modern family life, with a generous kitchen, dining and family room, a separate sitting room with wood-burning stove, a study and a practical utility room.

The first floor provides four bedrooms. The principal bedroom includes both a dressing room and en-suite shower room, while the remaining bedrooms are served by the family bathroom. Carefully selected finishes, traditional joinery and energy-conscious heating contribute to a home intended to feel both elegant and comfortable.

The entrance hall leads to the principal reception spaces and a downstairs cloakroom. Engineered light white oak flooring is specified to the hall, cloakroom, kitchen/dining/family room and sitting room. The sitting room features a corner fireplace incorporating a wood-burning stove, while broad timber patio doors from both the sitting room and family area connect the house with the rear terrace and garden.

The kitchen is individually designed, with stone worktops and a coordinated utility room. panelled internal doors, lamb's tongue architraves and skirtings, an oak handrail and panelling beneath the staircase provide a coherent traditional finish.

The first floor is arranged around a central landing and offers four bedrooms. The principal bedroom benefits from a dedicated dressing room and en-suite, complemented by a family bathroom serving the remaining bedrooms.

The family bathroom and en-suite are specified with Carrara marble floor tiles, white metro wall tiles within the shower areas and painted wall panelling. Sanitaryware is by Burlington, including a Millbrook roll-top bath, with Linton brassware by Ashbee & Stone and bespoke Vogue towel radiators.
