Steeped in history, many of their original features remain whilst they have been wonderfully restored to provide a contemporary modern home.

Set over two floors, this one bedroom cottage features a living room with engineered wood flooring, original feature wooden panelling, and fireplace, along with a separate high-end luxury kitchen on the ground floor. The shaker-style kitchen boasts white quartz worktops, integrated Bosch appliances including a dishwasher and washer dryer, and a breakfast bar. Upstairs, you'll find a good-sized master bedroom with original wooden panelling and a stunning modern bathroom. At the rear of the home is a private courtyard perfect for entertaining in the evening. Additionally, there is a former coal bunker ideal for storing a bike. There is an exceptionally generous abundance of outside space, with the expansive green central communal gardens and woodland areas providing residents with a serene and ecologically rich outdoor space to socialise, relax, and engage in active outdoor pursuits.

The key for architects Feilden & Mawson was to always remember the original function of these Almshouses. They were built to create a sense of community and connection where residents would feel proud to belong, and this remains at the core of the development today. This is an impressive home within a beautifully restored and historic development. Immediate viewing is essential.
