Originally a pair of farmworkers' cottages, the building was converted in more recent times into a 3 bedroom detached home extending to over 1600ft² of living space.

The current owners have paid great attention to detail and spared no expense in creating an outstanding character home.

The original part of the building is of lime rendered cob and brick, with more modern cement rendered cavity wall extensions. There is a wheat reed thatched roof with a tall brick chimney.

Connected to mains electricity and water, Jack's Cottage has private biodisc filtration drainage, oil fired heating, and lockable timber double glazed windows.

Tarrant Monkton is a sought after village, famous for its ford across the River Tarrant, and the renowned Langton Arms pub/restaurant.

There is also a parish church and a village hall. Farm shops are available in Tarrant Gunville and Rawston, and there is a village shop in nearby Chettle. There are state Primary Schools in Sixpenny Handley, Pamphill, and Pimperne, and the wider area is well served by independent schools including Dumpton, Bryanston and Clayesmore. The market towns of Blandford Forum and Wimborne Minster are easily accessible by car, as are the coastal town of Poole and the historic city of Salisbury, both of which have mainline railway stations.

Character features include 2 open fireplaces (one of which is currently sealed), Travertine and York stone flooring throughout the principal ground floor rooms, a wealth of exposed beams and timbers, latched oak internal doors, and an impressive bathroom with a copper rolltop bath.

The ground floor accommodation includes an open-fronted, thatched entrance porch, an entrance hall/study area, a cloakroom, a charming, beamed sitting room (with feature fireplace and wood burner, and doors to outside) and an impressive beamed dining hall with a large (sealed) fireplace, a window seat and a door to a front porch.

The superb kitchen/breakfast room features a York stone floor, hand-built bespoke units, a breakfast bar, an excellent range of polished granite surfaces, twin butler's sinks, an electric Aga (with 3 ovens and 2 hotplates, surrounded by a tiled backdrop, oak mantel and panelling), integrated dishwasher and water softener, and space for an American style fridge-freezer (available by separate negotiation.) Off the kitchen is a utility room with a stable door to outside.

An oak staircase leads to the first floor landing which has exposed wall timbers. There are 3 spacious bedrooms, all of which have wardrobes and lovely views over farmland. The superb principal suite comprises an attractive bedroom with a vaulted ceiling, exposed A-frame timbers, and an en suite shower room, and the impressive family bath/shower room includes a free standing copper and nickel rolltop bath.

Timber double gates on both sides of the house lead to Indian sandstone driveways providing ample parking.
