Woodland Cottage is a beautifully proportioned four-bedroom semi-detached Georgian house, believed to date from the early 19th century (circa 1820) based on architectural detail and historical research.

Preceded by a landscaped front garden, this handsome, classic Georgian home (non-listed) has been thoughtfully and extensively refurbished in recent years, with a carefully designed extension that enhances both space and natural light. The result is characterful yet light, versatile and well-balanced family accommodation arranged over two floors, combining period charm with the practicalities of modern living. The house offers an excellent sense of flow, with generous reception spaces and direct connections to the garden, making it equally suited to everyday family life and entertaining.

Woodland Cottage is ideally positioned for the many amenities of Highgate Village, including an outstanding selection of highly regarded state and private schools. Local bus routes provide easy access to the City and West End, while Highgate Underground Station is within walking distance. The open spaces of Hampstead Heath, Highgate Wood and Waterlow Park are also close-by, offering some of London's finest green spaces.
